

Gender and Politics in the Middle East and North Africa: A Decade after the Arab Uprisings

May 6, 7, 20, & 21, 2021
Virtual Workshop

Ellen Lust, Program on Governance and Local Development, University of Gothenburg
Marwa Shalaby, University of Wisconsin-Madison
Lena Wägnerud, Quality of Government Institute, University of Gothenburg

Hosted by The Program on Governance and Local Development at the University of Gothenburg

May 6

15.00 – 19.00 CEST

15.00-15.30: Introduction (Plenary, Sessions I & II)

Session I Women in National and Sub-National Politics

Chair: Marwa Shalaby

15.30-15.45

Alexandra Blackman, Cornell University

Politicians' Strategic Response to Gender Quotas in Tunisia's 2018 Municipal Elections

(co-authored with Julia Clark (UCSD/World Bank) and Aytug Sasmaz (Harvard University)).

15.45-16.15: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.20-16.35

Monica Komer, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Women's Representation and Attitudes Towards Female Leaders: Evidence from Tunisia.

16.35-17.05: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.10-17.25

Carolyn Barnett, Princeton University

Partial Equality Reforms and Social Change: Evidence from Morocco

17.25-17.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

18.00-18.15

Yuree Noh, Rhode Island College

Who Supports Gender Quotas in Transitioning and Authoritarian States in the Middle East and North Africa?

(co-authored with Marwa Shalaby (University of Wisconsin-Madison))

18.15-18.45: Discussion

18.45-19.00

Closing

May 6

15.00-15.30: Introduction (Plenary, Sessions I & II)

Session II: New Frontiers in Gender and Politics in MENA Research

Chair: Lihi Ben Shitrit

15.30-15.45

Maria Frederika Malmström, Lund University

Navigating the Ocean of Suspicion: Affective Politics and Ambivalent Cairene Masculinities

15.45-16.15: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.20-16.35

Tommaso Milani, University of Gothenburg

Checkpoints of Desire: Language and Intersectional Double Binds

16.35-17.05: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.10-17.25

Yasmin Chilmeran, Swedish Institute of International Affairs

Theorising Women's Participation in Peacebuilding Across Local-National-Global Scales: Case Studies from Iraq

17.25-17.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

18.00-18.15

Sa'ed Atshan, Swarthmore College

Queer Palestine and the Empire of Critique

18.15-18.45: Discussion

18.45-19.00

Closing

May 7

15.00-15.10 – Introduction (Plenary)

Session I: Gender, Displacement, and Conflict

Chair: Carla Abdo-Katsipis

15.10-15.25

Maria Holt, University of Westminster

The Violence of Displacement: Experiences of Palestinian and Syrian Refugee Women in Lebanon

15.25-15.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.00-16.15

Simona Sharoni, Merrimack College

Researching Gender and Resistance in Palestine and Israel: Reflections on Scholarship, Teaching and Advocacy

16.15-16.45: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.50-17.05

Kelsey Norman, Rice University, Baker Institute

The 'Inherent Vulnerability' of Being Female: A Gendered Analysis of Morocco's Immigration Reform

(co-authored with Carrie Reiling (Washington College))

17.05-17.35: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.40-17.55

Suad Joseph, University of California, Davis

A Gendered and Cultural Framework for Refugee Mental Health

(co-authored with Patrick Marius Koga (UC Davis); Kate Ellis (The American University in Cairo); and Rita H. Giacaman (Birzeit University))

17.55-18.25: Discussion

18.30-18.45

Closing

May 7

15.00-15.10 – Introduction (Plenary)

Session II: Gender and Authoritarian Politics I

Chair: Yuree Noh

15.10-15.25

Meriem Aissa, Rutgers University

Colonialism, State-building, and Women's Representation: Lessons from Algeria

15.25-15.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.00-16.15

Marwa Shalaby, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Discerning the Link between Descriptive and Substantive Representation under Authoritarianism

16.15-16.45: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.50-17.05

Aili Tripp, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Why Arab Autocracies Adopt Women's Rights

17.05-17.35: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.55-18.25: Discussion

Lindsay Benstead, Portland State University

Do Women Provide More Casework? Using Elite Surveys to Explain Representation in Arab Parliaments

18.30-18.45: Closing

May 20

15.00-15.10 – Introduction (Plenary)

Session I: Women's Activism and Social Movements

Chair: Carla Abdo Katsipis

15.10-15.25

Rola El-Husseini, Lund University

Theorizing State Feminism in the Arab World after the 2011 Uprisings

15.25-15.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.00-16.15

Selin Cagatay, University of Gothenburg

Feminist Counterpublics: A Useful Concept for Understanding MENA Women's Activisms from a Transnational Perspective?

16.15-16.45: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.50-17.05

Hind Ahmed Zaki, University of Connecticut

Mobilizing against State-Sanctioned Gender-Based Violence in Tunisia: Challenging Hegemonic State Feminism

17.05-17.35: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.40-17.55

Nadje Al-Ali, Brown University

Kurdish Women's Movements

17.55-18.25: Discussion

18.30-18.45: Closing

May 20

15.00-15.10 – Introduction (Plenary)

Session II: Gender, Religion, and Politics

Chair: Lihi Ben Shitrit

15.10-15.25

Tanya Zion-Waldoks, Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Back for the Future: The Temporal Logics of Religious Women's Struggles against Patriarchy, Racism and Religious-Nationalism in Israel

15.25-15.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.00-16.15

Mahmoud Jaraba, Max Planck Institute / Erlangen Centre for Islam and Law in Europe

The Right of Muslim Middle Eastern Women to Islamic Divorce within Muslim Minority Contexts: The Socio-Religious Life of Khul

16.15-16.45: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.50-17.05

Pinar Dokumaci, Queen's University

Possibilities for Change: Feminist Activism, Relational Re-imagination, and the Radical Political Disagreement between Secular Feminists and Pious Feminists in Turkey

17.05-17.35: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.40-17.55

Ebtesam Barakat, Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Ultra-Conservative Religiosity and the Negotiation over Women's Quality Employment: The Case of Druze Professional Women

17.55-18.25: Discussion

18.30-18.45: Closing

May 21

15.00-15.10 – Introduction

Session I: Gender and IR/Foreign Policy

Chair: Ellen Lust

15.10-15.25

Valentine M. Moghadam, Northeastern University
The Gendered Politics of US-Iran Relations

15.25-15.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.00-16.15

Ora Szekely, Clark University
Women in the Syrian Uprising

16.15-16.45: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.50-17.05

Summer Forester, Carleton College
Agitating for Change when Security takes Precedence: Militarism and Feminist Mobilization in the Middle East

17.05-17.35: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.40-17.55

Isis Nusair, Denison University
Gendered Narratives of Crossing of Syrian Refugee Women in Germany

17.55-18.25: Discussion

18.25-19.00: Plenary Closing (Sessions I & II) – next steps and thanks

May 21

Session II: Gender and Authoritarian Politics II

Chair: Yuree Noh

15.10-15.25

Tuba Kanci, Kocaeli University & Marie Carlson, University of Gothenburg (non-presenting co-author)

Democracy in the Making: Enactments of Women and Women's Social Movements in Turkey

15.25-15.55: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.00-16.15

Lihi Ben Shitrit, University of Georgia

Femonationalism in Israel/Palestine: When "Women's Rights" and Right-Wing Agendas Ally

16.15-16.45: Discussion

-5 min break-

16.50-17.05

Mounira Charrad, University of Texas

How Feminists Survive Authoritarianism: Examples from Tunisia

17.05-17.35: Discussion

-5 min break-

17.40-17.55

Gamze Cavdar, Colorado State University;

What is in a Joke? Humor, Affect, and Women's Collective Action in Turkey and Egypt

(co-authored with Nermin Allam, Rutgers University)

17.55-18.25: Discussion

18.25-19.00: Plenary Closing (Sessions I & II) – next steps and thanks

Participant Biographies

Ellen Lust

University of Gothenburg

Ellen Lust is the Founding Director of the Programs on Governance and Local Development at Yale University (est. 2013), at the University of Gothenburg (est. 2015), and Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Gothenburg. She received her M.A. in Modern Middle East and North African Studies (1993) and Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Michigan (1997). She was previously a faculty member at Rice University (1997-2000) and at Yale University (2000-2015), director of the Center for Middle East Studies at Yale University, and a visiting scholar at the Institute of Graduate Studies (Geneva, Switzerland) and the Straus Institute at NYU. Her current research examines the role of social institutions in governance and developing governance indicators to systematically gauge sub-national variations in governance and development.

Marwa Shalaby

University of Wisconsin-Madison

Marwa Shalaby is an assistant professor in the departments of Political Science and Gender and Women's Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Shalaby's work focuses on the intersection of the politics of authoritarianism, and women in politics. Her research also explicates the micro-dynamics and outcomes of electoral institutions under competitive authoritarianism, mainly in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region. Shalaby's work has appeared in Comparative Politics, Political Research Quarterly, Parliamentary Affairs, the Middle East Journal and Oxford Bibliographies in Political Science. She has co-authored an edited volume, The Evolving Role of Women after the Arab Spring, with Valentine Moghadam (2016). Shalaby is currently working on a book manuscript on gender and authoritarian politics in MENA.

Lena Wängnerud

University of Gothenburg

Lena Wängnerud is a Professor of Political Science at the University of Gothenburg. Her research focuses on representative democracy, with particular focus on issues of women's political influence and gender equality. She has also written extensively on gender and corruption, and gender and anxiety. She has published in the Annual Review of Political Science, European Political Science Review, Gender & Politics, Governance, Party Politics, and Scandinavian Political Studies.

Aili Tripp

University of Wisconsin-Madison

Aili Mari Tripp is the Wangari Maathai Professor of Political Science and Gender and Women's Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Tripp's research focuses on women and politics and women's movements in Africa, women and peacebuilding, and transnational feminism. Her most recent book is Seeking Legitimacy: Why Arab Autocrats Adopt Women's Rights (2019).

Alexandra Blackman

Cornell University

Alex is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Government at Cornell University. She was a Post-Doctoral Associate at New York University - Abu Dhabi in 2019-2020 and completed her Ph.D. at Stanford University in 2019. Her research is motivated by a broad interest in the politics of the Middle East, including the politics of gender, political party development, the evolution of authoritarian institutions, and the development of and appeal to religious identities in the political sphere.

Aytuğ Şaşmaz

Harvard University

Aytuğ Şaşmaz is a PhD candidate in the Government Department at Harvard University and a research fellow at Harvard Kennedy School's Middle East Initiative. His dissertation explores organization-building and electoral performance of secular-modernist parties in the Middle East and North Africa. In other research projects, he focuses on social welfare policies in the contexts of ethnic and organizational diversity, political participation, and democratic backsliding, primarily in the MENA region. Şaşmaz holds a BA in Political Science from Boğaziçi University and an MSc in International Political Economy from the London School of Economics.

Carla Abdo-Katsipis

Visiting Assistant Professor of Government and Public Policy at Wesleyan University

Carla Abdo-Katsipis is a visiting Assistant Professor of government and public policy at Wesleyan University. She received her Ph.D. from the Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland in 2016. Her research interests are in gender politics, Middle Eastern studies, and conflict. As a methodologist, she uses both ethnographic and survey data research methods. She is currently conducting research on the sex-trafficking of Syrian refugees in the Middle East.

Carrie Reiling

Washington College

Carrie Reiling is an assistant professor of political science and international studies at Washington College. Her research is situated at the intersection of global governance, economic development and inequality, human security, feminist theory, and African studies. Her book manuscript in progress, titled Sustaining Peace: Human Development, Economic Empowerment, and Discourses of Women's Security, uncovers the simultaneous projects of security, economic development, and peacebuilding that stem from the UN Security Council's Women, Peace, and Security agenda. She is also the Academic Network Coordinator of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom (WILPF).

Carolyn Barnett

Princeton University

Carolyn Barnett is a Ph.D. candidate in politics at Princeton University. Her research focuses on how public opinion, social norms, and behavior in the Middle East and North Africa evolve in response to women's rights reforms and other social policies. Her dissertation uses original quantitative and qualitative data to examine pathways for positive and negative policy feedback at the institutional and micro levels in Morocco in the aftermath of women's rights reforms. Carolyn held a Fulbright scholarship to Morocco in 2018-2019 for dissertation research, was a CASA Fellow in Cairo in 2009-2010, and holds an MSc in Middle East Politics from SOAS, University of London.

Ebtesam Barakat

Zefat Academic College / Bar-Ilan University / Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Ebtesam Barakat completed her Ph.D. thesis at Bar-Ilan University's Interdisciplinary Studies unit in the Gender Studies Program. She is interested in the political study of gender and minorities, and the construction of femininity and masculinity. In addition to her work as a lecturer at Bar Ilan University and the Zefat Academic College, Ebtesam is a post-doctoral researcher in the Faculty of Sociology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Her research deals with the ways in which religiously educated minority women are able to cope and shatter the intersecting barriers to their integration and professional advancement in the main labor market.

Gamze Cavdar

Colorado State University

Gamze Cavdar is an Associate Professor of Political Science at Colorado State University. Her research interests center around the issues of conservative movements, gender, and social policy. Her recent book, Women in Turkey: Silent Consensus in the Age of Neoliberalism and Islamic Conservatism, co-authored with Yavuz Yasar, (Routledge, 2019), examines public policies and their discourses surrounding women and gender over the last decade in Turkey.

Hind Ahmed Zaki

University of Connecticut

Hind Ahmed Zaki is an assistant professor of Political Science at the University of Connecticut. She received her Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Washington. She is a comparativist who focuses on feminist theories of the state, women's rights movements, and qualitative research methods in the Middle East and North Africa. Her current research analyzes how historical constructions of women's rights, as represented in institutions and narratives of state feminism, shaped feminist mobilization in the course of the Arab Spring, resulting in surprisingly empowering episodes of legal and political mobilization for women's rights. Her broader research interests include understanding different models of state feminism in the region and how they influenced the history and development and agenda of feminist movements in the Arab world.

Isis Nusair

Denison University

Isis Nusair is an Associate Professor of International Studies & Women's and Gender Studies at Denison University. She is the co-editor with Rhoda Kanaaneh of Displaced at Home: Ethnicity and Gender Among Palestinians in Israel, and translator of Ever Since I Did Not Die by Ramy Al-Asheq. Isis is the co-writer/director with Laila Farah of Weaving the Maps: Tales of Survival and Resistance. She is currently editing an anthology with Barbara Shaw on feminist collaborations in teaching and learning. Her research focuses on Iraqi women refugees in Jordan and the USA, Palestinian and Syrian refugees in Germany, and Syrian post-2011 TV dramas. She served on the editorial committee of MERIP and is a member of the Palestinian and Transnational Feminist Collectives.

Julia Clark

University of California, San Diego

Julia Clark is a PhD candidate in political science at the University of California, San Diego (UCSD), where her dissertation focuses on municipal governance in Tunisia and its implications for local development. As a Senior Economist at the World Bank, she also works extensively on the use of digital technology for development, including in the Middle East and North Africa. Clark holds a BA from Tufts University in International Relations and an MA in Governance and Development from the Institute of Development Studies (IDS), University of Sussex.

Kate Ellis

American University in Cairo

Kate Ellis is a clinical psychologist and assistant psychologist at the American University in Cairo. She specializes in the field of trauma and conflict within the Middle Eastern Region.

Kelsey Norman

Baker Institute, Rice University

Dr. Kelsey Norman is a fellow for the Middle East at Rice University's Baker Institute and director of the Women's Rights, Human Rights and Refugees Program. Her recent book, Reluctant Reception: Refugees, Migration, and Governance in the Middle East and North Africa (Cambridge University Press, 2020) is based on three years of fieldwork in Egypt, Morocco, and Turkey and is adapted from her doctoral dissertation, which was chosen for the Best Dissertation Award by the Migration and Citizenship Section of the American Political Science Association. Her research has been published in academic journals including the European Journal of International Relations, International Studies Review, the International Journal of Migration and Border Studies, and the Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies, among others. She has also published policy-oriented articles in The Washington Post and The Atlantic and regularly gives radio and television interviews and public lectures on topics related to her research. Additionally, she is an advisory board member of the Refugees Solidarity Network in New York.

Lihli Ben Shitrit

University of Georgia

Lihli Ben Shitrit is an associate professor at the School of Public and International Affairs, University of Georgia, Athens. She is the author of Righteous Transgressions: Women's Activism on the Israeli and Palestinian Religious Right (Princeton University Press, 2015) and Women and the Holy City: The Struggle over Jerusalem's Sacred Space (Cambridge University Press, 2020) as well as numerous articles and book chapters. Her work has been supported by various fellowships including from the ACLS/Luce Religion, International Affairs and Journalism fellowship (2019-2020), Harvard Kennedy School's Middle East Initiative (2018-2019), University of Pennsylvania's Katz Center for Advanced Judaic Studies (2017), and Harvard Divinity School's Women's Studies in Religion Program (2013-2014). Ben Shitrit holds a Ph.D., M.Phil. and MA in Political Science from Yale University and a BA in Middle Eastern Studies from Princeton University.

Lindsay Benstead

Portland State University

Lindsay J. Benstead is an Associate Professor of Political Science in the Mark O. Hatfield School of Government and Director of the Middle East Studies Center (MESOC) at Portland State University. She has previously served as a Fellow in the Middle East Program and the Women's Global Leadership Initiative at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, DC (2018-2019) and Kuwait Visiting Professor at Sciences Po in Paris (Fall 2016). Her research on women and politics, public opinion, and survey methodology has appeared in Perspectives on Politics, International Journal of Public Opinion Research, Governance, and Foreign Affairs. She holds a Ph.D. in Public Policy and Political Science from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Mahmoud Jaraba

Erlangen Centre for Islam and Law in Europe (EZIRE) / Max Planck Institute

Mahmoud Jaraba is a Research Fellow at the Erlangen Centre for Islam and Law in Europe (EZIRE) and associated with the Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology in Germany. He has studied socio-legal pluralism in Germany, with particular focus on the idea of "paralleljustiz," (parallel justice). Over the last few years, Jaraba has been studying the context, practice, and dynamics of nikah (Islamic marriage), talaq and Khul' (two types of Islamic divorce) among Sunni Muslims in Germany. In his work, he aims to investigate the various dynamics of religious forms of mediation and arbitration employed by imams and other community leaders attempting to legitimate certain solutions through the evocation of sharia arguments or customary rules. He looks specifically at the unofficial roles played by religious actors or family elders in settling family disputes or implementing certain family-related aspects of sharia in a fully extrajudicial manner.

Maria Frederika Malmström

Lund University

Maria Frederika Malmström is an Associate Professor at the Center for Middle Eastern Studies, Lund University, where she runs a collaborative 5-year research project: The Materiality of Suspicion and the Ambiguity of the Familiar: Nigerian and Egyptian Cityscapes together with Professor Mark LeVine, and Assistant Professors Ulrika Trovalla and Eric Trovalla. In 2018, she began the 3-year research project: Making and Unmaking Masculinities and Religious Identities through the Politics of the Ear in Egypt. She is currently a Visiting Research Scholar in the Middle East and Middle Eastern American Center, Graduate Center, CUNY, New York City. Malmström is the author of The Streets Are Talking to Me: Affective Fragments in Sisi's Egypt (University of California Press, 2009).

Maria Holt

University of Westminster

Dr Maria Holt is a Reader in Middle East Politics at the University of Westminster (London). Her research interests include Palestinian refugees in Lebanon; women and Islamic resistance in the Arab world; women, violence and conflict in the Middle East; and the Arab-Israeli conflict. Recent publications include Violence Against Women in Peace and War: Cases from the Middle East (Lexington Books, 2021), 'Islam and Resistance in the Middle East: A Methodology of Muslim Struggle and the Impact on Women' in The Routledge Handbook of Middle East Politics, (Routledge, 2020), and 'Practices of Sacrifice: A Case Study of Palestinian Women' (2018), Gender and Research, 19(1).

Marie Carlson

University of Gothenburg

Marie Carlson is a Professor Emeritus of Sociology, based at the Dept. of Sociology & Work Science at the University of Gothenburg. Her research interests include the sociology of education with a special focus on ethnicity/migration, multilingualism, gender, class, and power relations. She, along with Fatma Gök and Annika Rabo, published an anthology in 2007 entitled, Education in 'Multicultural' Societies: Turkish and Swedish Perspectives (translated to Turkish, 2011). With Tuba Kanci, Marie Carlson published (2017) "The Nationalized and Gendered Citizen in a Global World – Examples from Textbooks, Policy and Steering Documents in Turkey and Sweden," in the journal Gender & Education. Carlson was a board member of the Swedish Research Institute in Istanbul (2010-2018), and is currently a convenor of Network 33, Gender and Education within EERA (European Educational Research Association).

Meriem Aissa

Rutgers University

Meriem Aissa is a PhD candidate in political science at Rutgers University. Her dissertation is on women parliamentarians in Algeria. Drawing from in-depth interviews with women parliamentarians, male parliamentarians, and women's rights activists, her thesis argues that colonialism and state building have impacted how women parliamentarians represent women and other marginalized groups. Her future research projects will be on the 2019 Hirak protest movement, democratic transitions, and women in local politics.

Monica Komer

University of Wisconsin-Madison

Monica C. Komer is a Ph.D. student in Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Her research focuses on the consequences of women's political representation in the Middle East and North Africa. She holds a B.A. from Miami University and a M.A. from Indiana University.

Mounira M. Charrad

University of Texas at Austin

Mounira (Maya) Charrad (Ph.D., Harvard) is an Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of Texas, Austin and a Non-Resident Fellow at the Baker Institute, Rice University. Her book, States and Women's Rights: The Making of Postcolonial Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco won numerous national awards, including Best Book in Sociology from the American Sociological Association. Her articles have appeared in several major scholarly journals. She has edited or co-edited Patrimonial Power in the Modern World, Patrimonial Capitalism and Empire, Women's Agency: Silences and Voices; and Femmes, Culture et Société au Maghreb. Her work has been translated into French, Arabic, and Chinese.

Nadjé Al-Ali

Brown University

Nadjé Al-Ali is Robert Family Professor of International Studies and Professor of Anthropology and Middle East Studies at Brown University. Her main research interests revolve around feminist activism and gendered mobilization, mainly with reference to Iraq, Egypt, Lebanon, Turkey, and the Kurdish political movement. Her publications include; What Kind of Liberation? Women and the Occupation of Iraq (co-authored with Nicola Pratt, University of California Press, 2009); Iraqi Women: Untold Stories from 1948 to the Present (2007, Zed Books), and Secularism, Gender and the State in the Middle East (Cambridge University Press, 2000). She is on the advisory board of Kohl: A Journal for Body and Gender Research, and has been involved in several transnational feminist organizations and campaigns.

Nermin Allam

Rutgers University

Nermin Allam is an Assistant Professor of Politics at Rutgers University-Newark. Before joining Rutgers, Allam held a Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada postdoctoral fellowship at Princeton University. Allam's research interests include: Social movements theories; gender politics; Middle Eastern and North African studies; and political Islam. She is the author of Women and the Egyptian Revolution: Engagement and Activism during the 2011 Arab Uprisings.

Ora Szekely

Clark University

Ora Szekely is an Associate Professor of Political Science and director of the Program in Peace and Conflict Studies at Clark University. She is the author of The Politics of Militant Group Survival in the Middle East: Resources, Relationships, and Resistance (2016), co-author of Insurgent Women: Female Combatants in Civil Wars (2019) and co-editor of Stories from the Field: A Guide to Navigating Field Research in Political Science (2020). Her research has also appeared in a range of journals and edited volumes. She is currently working on a book about the civil war in Syria.

Patrick Marius Koga

University of California, Davis

Dr. Koga is an Associate Professor and Director of Refugee Health Research in the Dept. of Public Health Sciences at the University of California, Davis School of Medicine. His transcultural psychiatry research on gender, cultural, and religious/spiritual modulators of idioms of distress and resilience in trauma, violence against women, and post-resettlement impacts on refugees spans broad geographical areas, including Kyrgyzstan, Afghanistan, Iran, Russia, Turkey, Iraq, Lebanon, and Egypt.

Pinar Dokumaci

Queen's University

Pinar Dokumacı is the Peacock Postdoctoral Fellow in Political Theory (Gender and Politics) at Queen's University, Department of Political Studies. Prior to Queen's, she attained her Ph.D. degree from the Department of Political Science, University of Toronto, and held a postdoctoral position in the Leverhulme Trust-funded project "Rethinking Civil Society: History, Theory, Critique," at the Department of Politics, University of York.

Rita H. Giacaman

Birzeit University

Rita Giacaman is a Professor of Public Health at the Institute of Community and Public Health, Birzeit University, in occupied Palestinian territory. She has chronicled the effects of the Israeli military occupation on the life and health of Palestinians under occupation. Since 2000, she has focused on the impact of chronic war-like conditions and exposure to violence on the health and well-being of Palestinians. She has published extensively, locally and internationally. Rita was awarded an Honorary Ph.D. from LSE in 2011 and the title of International Fellow of the Society for Research on Adolescence in 2018 for her outstanding contributions to the field of public health in the Middle East.

Rola El-Husseini

Lund University

Rola El-Husseini is an Associate Professor with the Department of Political Science at Lund University, Sweden. She was trained as a political sociologist in Paris and has extensive work experience in the US. Her first book, Pax Syriana: Elite Politics in Post-War Lebanon was published by Syracuse University Press in 2012. She is currently writing a book manuscript on women's political representation since the Arab uprisings in six Middle Eastern states.

Sa'ed Atshan

Swarthmore College and University of California, Berkeley

Dr. Sa'ed Atshan is an Associate Professor of Peace and Conflict Studies at Swarthmore College. He is currently a Visiting Professor of Anthropology and Visiting Scholar in Middle Eastern Studies at the University of California, Berkeley. He previously served as a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Watson Institute for International Studies at Brown University. He earned a Joint Ph.D. in Anthropology and Middle Eastern Studies and an MA in Social Anthropology from Harvard University and a Master in Public Policy (MPP) degree from the Harvard Kennedy School.

Selin Çağatay

University of Gothenburg and Central European University

Selin Çağatay is an affiliated researcher in two international collaborative research projects: “Spaces of Resistance. A Study of Gender and Sexualities in Times of Transformation” at the University of Gothenburg, Sweden, and “ZARAH: Women’s Labour Activism in Eastern Europe and Transnationally, from the Age of Empires to the Late 20th Century” at the Central European University, Austria. Selin has a Ph.D. in Comparative Gender Studies from CEU (2016). Her research concerns gender politics and equality struggles in Turkey from historical and transnational perspectives, with a focus on activist agendas, organizational forms, and strategies. Selin held visiting fellowships at Lund University, the University of Gothenburg, and Vienna University, and has taught courses on interdisciplinary gender research, gender regimes, women's activism, NGOs, and transnational feminism at CEU, Eötvös Lorand University, and the University of Gothenburg. Her work and teaching is informed by her experience as a feminist activist for two decades in numerous organizations and initiatives in Turkey, Hungary, Sweden, and internationally.

Simona Sharoni

Merrimack College

Simona Sharoni is a Professor of Women’s and Gender Studies and Special Assistant to the President for Diversity, Equity & Inclusion at Merrimack College in North Andover, MA. Sharoni is the author of Gender and the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict: The Politics of Women's Resistance, co-editor of The Handbook of Gender and War, and author of over 60 scholarly publications. Her forthcoming books include Gender and the Struggles for Justice in Palestine and Israel (Syracuse University Press, 2021) and De-Militarizing Masculinities in the Age of Backlash (Rowan & Littlefield, 2021).

Suad Joseph

University of California, Davis

Suad Joseph is a Distinguished Research Professor, at the University of California, Davis. Her work has focused on family, gender, socialization of children, and personhood in Arab countries, with particular focus on Lebanon. She founded and directs the University of California Arab Region Consortium, the Association of Middle East Women's Studies, the Middle East Section of the American Anthropological Association, and the Arab Families Working Group. She has edited or co-edited 10 books, authored over 100 articles, and won numerous awards, include the UC Davis Distinguished Teaching and Research Award.

Summer Forester

Carleton College

Summer Forester is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Carleton College in Northfield, MN. Her research focuses on militarism, gender justice, and feminist mobilization. She has published in Security Dialogue, Politics & Gender, and Feminist Review.

Tanya Zion-Waldoks

Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Dr. Tanya Zion-Waldoks is a lecturer in the Seymour Fox School of Education at Hebrew University, gender scholar, feminist activist, and mother of four. Tanya is fascinated by the intersection of religion, gender, and politics, with a focus on social change. Her current research explores feminist activism and women's political subjectivities in religious communities or traditional contexts in Israel, examined through qualitative studies with a comparative lens. Her work has been published in leading journals such as Gender & Society and Signs, and she recently completed her post-doctoral research at the Center for the Study of Religion, Princeton University.

Tommaso Milani

University of Gothenburg

Tommaso M. Milani is a Professor in the Department of Swedish and a critical discourse analyst, interested in the ways in which power imbalances are (re)produced and/or contested through semiotic means. His main research foci are: language ideologies; language policy and planning; linguistic landscape; and language, gender and sexuality. He has published extensively on these topics in international journals and edited volumes. Among his publications are the edited collection Language and Masculinities: Performances, Intersections and Dislocations (Routledge, 2016) and the Linguistic Landscape special issue on Gender, Sexuality and Linguistic Landscapes (2018). He is co-editor of the journal Language in Society.

Tuba Kanci

Kocaeli University

Tuba Kanci is an Associate Professor of Political Science at Kocaeli University (Turkey). She received her PhD from Sabancı University (İstanbul, Turkey). She was a postdoctoral researcher and lecturer at Koç University (İstanbul); worked as assistant professor of Political Science at Yıldırım Beyazıt University (Ankara), and was a visiting researcher at Center for the Study of Democracy at University of California, Irvine (USA). Her main research areas are citizenship studies, gender studies, civil society, social movements, education, political theory, and political ideologies. She has authored a variety of peer-reviewed articles in international journals such as Gender and Education and Nations and Nationalism. She has published, among others “Nationalized and Gendered Citizen in a Global World” (with M. Carlson); “A Tale of Ambiguity: Citizenship, Nationalism and Democracy in Turkey” (with E. F. Keyman); and “The Reconfigurations in the Discourse of Nationalism and National Identity.”

Valentine M. Moghadam

Northeastern University

Valentine M. Moghadam is Professor of Sociology and International Affairs at Northeastern University, Boston. Born in Tehran, Iran, Professor Moghadam received her higher education in Canada and the U.S. In addition to her academic career, Prof. Moghadam has been Coordinator of the Research Program on Women and Development at the UNU’s WIDER Institute (Helsinki, 1990-1995) and a section chief for gender equality and development, UNESCO’s Social and Human Sciences Sector (Paris, 2004-2006). Among her many publications, Prof. Moghadam is author of Modernizing Women: Gender and Social Change in the Middle East (1993, 2003, 2013); Globalizing Women: Transnational Feminist Networks (2005); and Globalization and Social Movements: The Populist Challenge and Democratic Alternatives (2020). She has edited seven books, including Empowering Women after the Arab Spring (2016, with Marwa Shalaby). She has a forthcoming co-authored book (with Shamiran Mako): After the Arab Uprisings: Progress and Stagnation in the Middle East and North Africa (Cambridge, 2021). Prof. Moghadam is a board member of Massachusetts Peace Action and the Feminist Foreign Policy Project.

Yasmin Chilmeran

Swedish Institute of International Affairs

Yasmin Chilmeran is a Post-Doctoral Research Fellow at the Swedish Institute of International Affairs’ Middle East and North Africa Programme. She is also an Ernst Mach (visiting) fellow at the Austrian Institute of International Affairs. She completed her PhD at Monash University’s Centre for Gender, Peace and Security in 2020. Yasmin’s research interests centre on gender and security issues in post-conflict settings – with a particular focus on the Middle East region and Iraq. She specifically examines questions on women’s participation in peacebuilding, civil society, and the implementation and contestation of international gender frameworks in post-conflict settings, including the Women, Peace and Security agenda.

Yuree Noh

Rhode Island College / Harvard Kennedy School

Yuree Noh is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Rhode Island College and a Research Fellow at the Harvard Kennedy School's Middle East Initiative at the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, where she was previously a postdoctoral research fellow (2018-2019). She specializes in comparative politics of the countries in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region. Her research interests include electoral institutions & manipulation, civil society, and gender politics in authoritarian regimes. In her current book project, she investigates why some autocrats use extensive electoral fraud whereas others do not, arguing that strong social cohesion can reduce fraud by facilitating the spread of information regarding rigged elections.